

Patrick Cavalier sought help from Separated Fathers (PSi) in 2008, following a marital breakdown. He did volunteer work, served on the Board of Directors, later hired as an intervention worker and then served as Executive Director all in the spirit of participatory justice, co-parenting and grieving. After receiving training on the effects of male socialization with fathers in the context of family break-up, he has been invited on numerous occasions to present SP's innovative "socio-emotional-legal" approach to community organizations and various symposia.

Patrick Cavalier has more than 25 years of experience as a training consultant, in change management and integrated systems implementation with major corporations in the pharmaceutical, aeronautics and IT sectors. Academically, Patrick holds a master's in Human Systems Intervention and a Bachelor of Political Science from Concordia University and was a part-time faculty lecturer in the Department of Applied Human Sciences. As part of his master's degree, he obtained a certification in industrial psychology (executive coaching) from the psychology School of California and a certification in Learning in Action and Psychometric Evaluation (Emotional Intelligence).
